Opened in July 2009, the resort has become recognized as one of the prime tourism sites on the Dubrovnik Riviera. Sun Gardens Dubrovnik is a member of The Leading Hotels of the World, a prestigious collection of independent luxury hotels.

Resort facilities include a world-class spa, sports centre, a variety of restaurants and bars, pools and natural pebble beach, retail shopping area, and children facilities, all designed to attract and appeal to the family market, couples and independent travellers alike.

The resort layout replicates the ambience of a traditional Mediterranean village, set amid mature gardens with panoramic views of the Adriatic and Elaphite islands just off the coast of the mainland.

GETTING THERE

The resort is located 35 kilometres from the Dubrovnik International Airport. The majority of direct flights are operating seasonally, from spring to autumn, while limited routes are available all-year-round. Seasonal direct flights to the USA are also available.

The A1/D8/E65 motorway connects Zagreb with Ploče; guests can take the D8 to Dubrovnik, and exit in Orašac, on the street Na moru.

Ferry connections operate from Italy and other areas of Croatia and there is significant cruise ship trade in the summer.

HISTORY

In 1512, the Florentine statesman Piero Soderini was driven into exile by the Medici family and is reputed to have settled in the stone castle (palazzo) in the grounds of what is now Sun Gardens Dubrovnik until his return to Italy. The original palace still stands and forms a picturesque focal point within the resort gardens.

Parts of the site were first developed in the late 1980s as a resort frequented by European and local tourists. The on-site nightclub at the time became a popular hangout for many of Croatia's rock musicians. During the 1991-1995 war, Dubrovnik was subjected to a siege lasting many months. The city was extensively shelled damaging many historic buildings and much of the surrounding areas. Sun Gardens Dubrovnik was also badly damaged, burned and looted.

In 2008, a major redevelopment of the site began. The residences, pools and promenade areas were upgraded, replaced and extended, whilst the hotel, spa conference and event facilities and sports centre were constructed. Sun Gardens Dubrovnik opened as a fully-fledged luxury integrated resort in July 2009.

ARCHITECTURE

The architects of Sun Gardens Dubrovnik resort are Croatian Branimir Medić and Pero Puljiz - who are internationally recognized architects. The duo studied at the Berlage Institute in Amsterdam where they both attained Masters of Excellence in Architectural degrees.

The interior design of the contemporary, nine-storey hotel was inspired by the experienced and highly regarded firm of Hirsch Bedner Associates whose portfolio includes luxury resorts. The hotel building design maximises available light and provides outstanding views across the resort and coastline towards the Elaphite Islands. The hotel lobby and public areas are airy and spacious, while the interior décor is bright and breezy, with use of clear, Mediterranean-inspired colour schemes.

One of the features at Sun Gardens Dubrovnik decorating project was the use of Croatian resources, such as materials, equipment and decorations, and also the selection of artwork, which was specially chosen by Studio Nest Zagreb. Every item of artwork adorning inside the hotel was done by Croatian authors.

DUBROVNIK

Named 'The Pearl of the Adriatic' by writer George Bernard Shaw, the historic city of Dubrovnik is a UNESCO World Heritage site and one of the most beautiful and famous cities in the world. The city's origins date back to the 7th century but it is best known for its high, sea-facing medieval walls and old town, featuring a mix of Renaissance and Baroque architecture, marble-paved streets and vibrant social scene.

Dubrovnik is becoming established as an important destination in Europe, with annual tourist numbers currently estimated at around two million.

Dubrovnik has a long and rich love affair with Hollywood's finest. The 1960's were a golden era for the city with A listed celebrities such as Sophia Loren, Yul Brynner and one of the most celebrated couples of all time Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton. When the popular HBO series Game of Thrones rolled into town in 2011 Dubrovnik was suddenly not only in the focus of their cameras but also the cameras of half the world.

One of the most popular serials of all time, certainly put Dubrovnik back on the map for filmmakers and opened a new door for Dubrovnik. The 16th century drama Borgia filmed the third and final season of the series in Dubrovnik and Star Wars VIII used many locations around the historic city core as locations, the Stradun, the main street had a complete makeover and even a ship was used in the filming. And to make a "full house" a Hollywood blockbuster Robin Hood: Origins, starring actors Jamie Foxx, Taron Egerton and Jamie Doran was also filmed in the city.

As it has recently become a popular filming destination, Dubrovnik is a favourite holiday spot for an expanding list of wealthy and well known people, including business people such as Roman Abramovich, Bernie Ecclestone and Bill Gates, and Hollywood A-listers, such as Tom Cruise, Morgan Freeman, Gerard Butler, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie, John Malkovich (whose family originates in Croatia), Steven Spielberg, Beyoncé and Jay – Z, Jamie Foxx and Bono Vox.

ADRIATIC COAST

The Adriatic is a dramatic and beautiful coastline with small, rocky bays, numerous islands, pretty beaches and clear waters. Its waters offer some of the best sailing in the Mediterranean with 'island to island' hopping, numerous small marinas and winds through the spring and autumn. The eastern Adriatic is also reputed for its diving, with accessible wrecks spanning two millennia and was a favourite destination for marine explorer Jacques Cousteau.

ISLANDS

Just off the Dubrovnik coast lie beautiful islands including the nature reserve of Lokrum and the three Elaphite Islands, which offer pretty bays for bathing, medieval villages and, on Lopud, a well-regarded contemporary art gallery. Regular boat trips from the city or resort take tourists to visit these islands.

CLIMATE

The Dalmatian climate is typically Mediterranean. The summer months of June to September can be very hot and dry with average temperatures of 20 to 28 degrees. Winters are mild with average temperatures of 5 to 10 degrees.

DUBROVNIK REGION

Historical tours of Dubrovnik are a must as are visits to nearby Cavtat, a medieval town in a stunning location 18km from Dubrovnik. Nearby, there is also the pretty coastal village of Trsteno with its historic arboretum, which covers 25 hectares. It was built as a country estate for a local noble family in the late-1400s and became one of the region's most influential cultural centres. Today it is renowned for its diverse botanical collection and Renaissance statuary.

FOOD & WINE

Wines were introduced to the Croatian coast by Greek settlers over 2,000 years ago. The region's vineyards, particularly those of the rural Pelješac Peninsula, provide good local wine, including Plavac and Chardonnay. Tours of vineyards in the Dubrovnik area can easily be arranged at the resort.

Gastronomy is another local attraction. Croatia is renowned for some of the best and freshest seafood in Europe and foodies flock to Ston, 54km from Dubrovnik, to sample the area's famous oysters. The local peppery olive oil and organic agricultural produce is also highly regarded, especially in autumn around grape and olive harvest times.

EVENTS AND CULTURE

Dubrovnik is a lively town year-round with plenty of festivals and cultural events attracting locals and tourists alike - from exhibitions by international and Croatian artists in galleries to theatre and musical performances on the baroque stage of the Marin Držić Theatre or the city's palaces, atriums and fortresses. Be sure to attend one of the concerts of the Dubrovnik Symphony Orchestra or enjoy Lindo folk dance performance, performing throughout the year.

The Dubrovnik Summer Festival is the most important date on the cultural calendar of the city. During the 45 days in July and August all of Dubrovnik becomes a big stage for ballet, jazz, folklore, classical and opera concerts and theatre performances. Among the other main events are also Shakespeare's "Midsummer Scene" and Tino Patiera Opera Festival in June.

The colder weather heralds a string of events including the Dubrovnik Winter Festival, which runs from November and during Christmas week regular festive concerts take place around the city. The most significant date on the city's calendar is 3rd February, St Blaise Day, which sees processions of locals dressed in traditional costume followed almost immediately by Carnival.

Gastronomy is another local attraction. Croatia is renowned for some of the best and freshest seafood in Europe and foodies flock to Ston, 54km from Dubrovnik, to sample the area's famous oysters. The blooming of oyster season coincides with the traditional Feast of St Joseph on March the 19th of each year. The local peppery olive oil and organic agricultural produce is also highly regarded and farm tours are popular, especially in autumn around grape and olive harvest times.
