RESORT HISTORY

In 1512, the Florentine statesman Piero Soderini was driven into exile by the Medici family and is reputed to have settled in the stone castle (palazzo) in the grounds of what is now Sun Gardens Dubrovnik until his return to Italy. The original palace still stands and forms a picturesque focal point within the resort gardens.

Parts of the site were first developed in the late 1980s as a resort frequented by European and local tourists. The on-site nightclub at the time became a popular hangout for many of Croatia's rock musicians. During the 1991-1995 war, Dubrovnik was subjected to a siege lasting many months. The city was extensively shelled damaging many historic buildings and much of the surrounding areas. Sun Gardens Dubrovnik was also badly damaged, burned and looted.

In 2008, a major redevelopment of the site began. The residences, pools and promenade areas were upgraded, replaced and extended, whilst the hotel, spa conference and event facilities and sports centre were constructed. Sun Gardens Dubrovnik opened as a fully-fledged luxury integrated resort in July 2009.

ARCHITECTURE

In 2008, a major redevelopment of the site. The architects of Sun Gardens Dubrovnik resort are Croatian Branimir Medić and Pero Puljiz – who are internationally recognized architects. The duo studied at the Berlage Institute in Amsterdam where they both attained Masters of Excellence in Architectural degrees.

The interior design of the contemporary, nine-storey hotel was inspired by the experienced and highly regarded firm of Hirsch Bedner Associates whose portfolio includes luxury resorts such as Aphrodite Hills in Cyprus; Castel Monastero in Tuscany and the Four Seasons Resort in the Seychelles. The hotel building design maximises available light and provides outstanding views across the resort and coastline towards the Elaphite Islands. The hotel lobby and public areas are airy and spacious, while the interior décor is bright and breezy, with use of clear, Mediterranean-inspired colour schemes.

One of the features at Sun Gardens Dubrovnik decorating project was the use of Croatian resources, such as materials, equipment and decorations, and also the selection of artwork, which was specially chosen by Studio Nest Zagreb. Every item of artwork adorning inside the hotel was done by Croatian authors.

GROUNDS & LIFESTYLE

One of the most noticeable features of the resort is that the gardens are established and mature, the majority of the trees having been planted more than 20 years ago. Attractive walkways, created from creamy stone from the Dalmatian island of Brač, meander between lush, scented areas planted thickly with olive, pine and citrus trees and oleander bushes.

Life at Sun Gardens Dubrovnik is designed to mirror that of the resort's Adriatic location and surroundings. Access to a relaxing outdoor lifestyle via the beach, gardens and panoramic vistas of the sea and surrounding hills is an important element of ownership. Premium cuisine and wine, the knowledge of local people and a sense of what is important to the emotional and physical wellbeing of residents and guests make Sun Gardens Dubrovnik extremely special. Though the attractions and amenities of Dubrovnik city centre are easily accessed via hotel shuttle bus or boat, residents can escape the city's bustle in the resort while having all of their needs catered to.

DUBROVNIK

Named 'The Pearl of the Adriatic' by writer George Bernard Shaw, the historic city of Dubrovnik is a UNESCO World Heritage site and one of the most beautiful and famous cities in the world. The city's origins date back to the 7th century but it is best known for its high, sea-facing medieval walls and old town, featuring a mix of Renaissance and Baroque architecture, marble-paved streets and vibrant social scene. Dubrovnik is becoming established as an important destination in Europe, with annual tourist numbers currently estimated at around two million.

Dubrovnik has a long and rich love affair with Hollywood's finest. The 1960's were a golden era for the city with A listed celebrities such as Sophia Loren, Yul Brynner and one of the most celebrated couples of all time Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton.

When the popular HBO series Game of Thrones rolled into town in 2011 Dubrovnik was suddenly not only in the focus of their cameras but also the cameras of half the world.

One of the most popular serials of all time, certainly put Dubrovnik back on the map for filmmakers and opened a new door for Dubrovnik. The 16th century drama Borgia filmed the third and final season of the series in Dubrovnik and Star Wars VIII used many locations around the historic city core as locations, the Stradun, the main street had a complete makeover and even a ship was used in the filming. And to make a "full house" a Hollywood blockbuster Robin Hood: Origins, starring actors Jamie Foxx, Taron Egerton and Jamie Doran was also filmed in the city.

As it has recently become a popular filming destination, Dubrovnik is a favourite holiday spot for an expanding list of wealthy and well known people, including business people such as Roman Abramovich, Bernie Ecclestone and Bill Gates, and Hollywood A-listers, such as Tom Cruise, Morgan Freeman, Gerard Butler, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie, John Malkovich (whose family originates in Croatia), Steven Spielberg, Beyoncé and Jay - Z, Jamie Foxx and Bono Vox.

ADRIATIC COAST

The Adriatic is a dramatic and beautiful coastline with small, rocky bays, numerous islands, pretty beaches and clear waters. Its waters offer some of the best sailing in the Mediterranean with 'island to island' sailing, numerous small marinas and consistent winds through the spring and autumn. The eastern Adriatic is also reputed for its diving, with accessible wrecks spanning two millennia and was a favourite destination for marine explorer Jacques Cousteau.

ISLANDS

Just off the Dubrovnik coast lie several beautiful islands including the nature reserve of Lokrum and the three Elaphite Islands, which offer pretty bays for bathing, medieval villages and, on Lopud, a well-regarded contemporary art gallery. Regular boat trips from the city or resort take tourists to visit these islands.

DUBROVNIK REGION

Historical tours of Dubrovnik are a must as are visits to nearby Cavtat, a medieval town in a stunning location 18km from Dubrovnik. Nearby, there is also the pretty coastal village of Trsteno with its historic arboretum, which covers 25 hectares. It was built as a country estate for a local noble family in the late-1400s and became one of the region's most influential cultural centres. Today it is renowned for its diverse botanical collection and Renaissance statuary.

LOCAL GASTRONOMY

Wines were introduced to the Croatian coast by Greek settlers over 2,000 years ago. The region's vineyards, particularly those of the rural Pelješac Peninsula, provide good local wine, including Plavac and Chardonnay. Tours of vineyards in the Dubrovnik area can easily be arranged at the resort. Dubrovnik is a gourmet paradise, a combination of extremely healthy food, excellent traditional recipes and a passion for the freshest local produce. A true voyage of discovery awaits.

EVENTS & CULTURE

Dubrovnik is a lively town year-round with plenty of festivals and cultural events attracting locals and tourists alike – from exhibitions by international and Croatian artists in galleries to theatre and musical performances on the baroque stage of the Marin Držić Theatre or the city's palaces, atriums and fortresses. Be sure to attend one of the concerts of the Dubrovnik Symphony Orchestra or enjoy Linđo folk dance performance, performing throughout the year.

The Dubrovnik Summer Festival is the most important date on the cultural calendar of the city. During the 45 days in July and August all of Dubrovnik becomes a big stage for ballet, jazz, folklore, classical and opera concerts and theatre performances. Among the other main events are also Shakespeare's "Midsummer Scene" and Tino Patierro Opera Festival in June.

The colder weather heralds a string of events including the Dubrovnik Winter Festival, which runs from November and during Christmas week regular festive concerts take place around the city. The most significant date on the city's calendar however, is 3rd February, St Blaise Day, which sees beautiful processions of locals dressed in traditional costume followed almost immediately by Carnival.

Gastronomy is another local attraction. Croatia is renowned for some of the best and freshest seafood in Europe and foodies flock to Ston, 54km from Dubrovnik, to sample the area's famous oysters. The blooming of oyster season coincides with the traditional Feast of St Joseph on March the 19th of each year. The local peppery olive oil and organic agricultural produce is also highly regarded and farm tours are popular, especially in autumn around grape and olive harvest times.
